

56% of Uganda's population Earns Less Than Ush150,000.

Uganda continues to face significant income inequality, as highlighted by the year 2023 Finscope survey. The findings provide a clear snapshot of the country's economic disparities and income distribution.

People of Uganda are so confused since the income is slightly low, the economy is high and the population is increasing day and night since most Ugandans produce when they are still below 18 years, making the population increase in the country. On top of that, jobs are scarce since both educated and uneducated are looking for jobs.

This goes to the president of Uganda to please help both able and disabled people to at least have their own jobs through providing institutes to go through for a better leaving.

Written by:
Julian Musiimenta
September 16, 2024